

American media coverage of the recent War with Iraq showed little in the way of diversity or independent reporting. Further deregulation will insure elimination of the few remaining voices of dissent, allowing one corporate media voice to permeate all markets.